"And Away He Run"

Tom, Tom, the Piper's Son,
Stole a Pig and away he run;
The Pig was eat AND TOM WAS BEAT
And Tom went crying back to Jersey City.

A Poor Loser!

A LECK SIMPSON, Lord High Executioner of the Hall-Mills case, announces that if the jury doesn't convict the four defendants, he will try each of the accused separately at a cost of $1,000,000 to the taxpayers of Somerset county.

There's the spirit of an unprejudiced, fair-minded prosecutor, for you! He will make the taxpayers sweat. He is boiling over because the bottom of this newspaper case is falling out. Last week he had to repudiate his own witness and withdraw the famous razor which was hailed by the Queen of Tabloidia as the instrument which had been used to cut Mrs. Mills's throat.

Such incidents as these are disquieting for Mr. Simpson. Another thing to which Mr. Simpson objects is that the jury has been known to doze. On one occasion some of the jurymen fell asleep, probably because they were tired of listening to the wise cracks of the village cut-up.

It all goes to prove that you can't convict four people of murder by trying them in a newspaper before you try them in a court of law. This thing didn't ring true from the start. It smelled of politics—of Hudson county politics, which exude a sulphurous odor.

The "pig woman" has had her day, and now that she is recuperating from her mysterious illness, Senator Simpson will find out that you can't make a silk purse out of a sow's ear, any more than you can make a governorship or a United States senatorship out of a pig's tale.

"The pig was eat and Tom was beat!"

The Right Start

IT'S EASIER to go right AFTER A RIGHT START than to get set right after a WRONG START.

That principle has been given too little attention in our educational system.

The defect is going to be remedied.

Dr. Felix Adler, at the age of 75, is outlining work for a school which will teach its students the value of decency, the value of honesty, the value of square dealing.

SUCH EDUCATION will do more to stop crime than all the stringent laws that could be written.

It will do more to block war than all the diplomacy in the world.

Humanity, efficiency, freedom and culture ALL depend upon UNDERSTANDING THINGS FROM THE OTHER FELLOW'S VIEWPOINT.

That is what this new educational system proposes to teach.

All persons interested in a better world for everybody will give it hearty support.

Great Thoughts of Great Men

The Constitution in all its provisions looks to an indestructible Union composed of indestructible states.—Chase.

And he is off the wisest man
Who is not wise at all.—Wordsworth.

Henceforth the majesty of God revere;
Fear Him, and you have nothing else to fear.—Fordyce.

Knowledge is more than equivalent to force.—Johnson.

Be Yourself!

We are naturally inclined to envy those who are successful.

We are interested in the method they may have adopted to attain these material rewards.

And at times we are inclined to copy them, to try to be like them in every way.

This is a grave mistake!

Learn all you can. Acquire detailed information of the sphere of life in which you expect to be active.

But—be yourself!

Work out your problems, your difficulties, in your own way!

Copies are never successful in a big way.

But the men or women who clear a track of their own along life's road are usually among the leaders.

Naturally, you must have knowledge of the business or profession you expect to follow.

Those who have made a success in such fields will be a source of invaluable information.

But you should not blindly follow them. You should not ape them.

You should be yourself!

Study your own reactions to the difficulties with which you have to cope. Face these problems with a clear mind, and attempt to solve them in accordance with the dictates of your own conscience and intelligence.

It is only through this method that you can develop your innate abilities.

Every man can make a track for himself on the road to success.

Or he can take the path made by another and create standards and policies that make a definite improvement upon the work of those who preceded him.

Self-confidence is a factor of great importance.

Stand straight, squarely on your own feet!

Believe in yourself with your whole heart.

Fight the battle of life with the determination to win on your merit.

And you will learn through true experience that it will pay you handsomely to be yourself in nearly every emergency.

WHAT HAVE YOU TO SAY?

THIS QUEEN MAKES A HIT

To the Editor of The GRAPHIC:—

On my way home I bought a copy of the New York GRAPHIC Magazine Section, and, as usual, turned page after page, scanning headlines, etc. When I came to 4-M and read the first line of caption—it tickled me, and the ride through the subway home was a relief, all on account of "Travelogues of a Queen," by Goldie, Queen of Glomania, edited by the Earl of Gramercy. I'm looking forward to another piece about "Goldie, Queen of Glomania."

L. N. DEVENS.

EATS LITTLE RICE

To the Editor of The GRAPHIC:—

I am surprised that you published an article from J. S. D., who says that immigrants' labor is cheaper and that they live on rice, etc. It is not true. Why keep the foreigners out? Foreigners are risking their lives in the coal mines and factories, etc. I am a foreigner, five years in this country, and consume very little rice, but live as the rest of the people and millions of foreigners.

ANDREW FOWLER.

New York.

MORE POWER IT IS

To the Editor of The GRAPHIC:—

From the beginning I have found

"Nothing but the truth" in both GRAPHIC news stories and editorials. Its editorials really reflect the people's desires and I approve heartily of its platform for the betterment of our great city. Let's all co-operate in having The GRAPHIC achieve that for which it is striving—that of being the greatest paper in New York. More power to The Evening GRAPHIC.

NAPOLEON C. GUCCIONE.

SUCCESS AND FAILURE

To the Editor of The GRAPHIC:—

If the real Americans could grasp the opportunity given them by their country, they would not find time to worry about immigrants and their success. There are two great crimes in life: Success and failure. But the man who is a success hasn't time to look at the other man's failure.

G. A. LAWRENCE.
(British West Indian).

PRAISE FOR PEACHES

To the Editor of The GRAPHIC:—

Why are you always panning Peaches? She's a beautiful girl—with lots of sense. Her mother is a most charming and intelligent woman. Browning never appreciated her.

W. M. MADDEN.
420 Riverside Drive.
